Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., is continuing inquiries into auto industry safety practices. Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., faces Senate Ethics Committee investigation. Adlai Stevenson III, a rising star in Illinois politics, is running for state treasurer. Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., is taking the lead in a campaign to broaden U.S. interest in Latin America.

THE SHAPE TO COME?—Resembling a cubist anthill, a futuristic apartment complex under construction on the banks of the St. Lawrence River at Montreal for the city's coming world's fair, EXPO 67, will look like this model when completed. Precast molds will be hoisted into place to make 158 one- to four-bedroom units, each with landscaped gardens. The base contains a complete power plant, service facilities and covered parking for each tenant. The $13.5 million project is an experiment in a "complete living environment" for a high-density population area.

SKY TAXI—At busy metropolitan airports, it may often seem that it takes as long to get from the parking lot to the terminal on foot as it takes a plane to fly to a distant destination. No longer at the Houston, Tex., International Airport. A half-million dollar, electronically controlled Sky Taxi, beginning a two-year test, zips along a monorail on rubber tires between the farthest parking areas and the terminal. Passengers enter and leave on a built-in elevator.

FASHION FLURRY—Paris, Rome and London aren't Europe's only style capitals. High fashion is also a thriving industry in West Berlin, where these models show off items from the spring collections of top designers. And as in Paris, Rome and London, a view of the knee is very much the thing.

GLUG!—For some strange reason, signs of spring on campuses across the country include a tug-of-war with girls enthusiastically pulling each other through mud-filled trenches to the delight of male onlookers. But few put so much of themselves into the effort as this coed, almost totally immersed in a battle at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

NO GLAMOR—A wild moment in a generally hectic film comes as Richard Burton draws a bead on his reel and real wife, Elizabeth Taylor, in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" George Segal shares the fireworks. The glamorous actress doesn't look herself in the role, and for a reason. Make-up men worked long and hard at turning her into an aging, graying, overweight alcoholic for the tough-talking drama.

FULL HOUSE—A quonset hut theater with extra-comfy seats? No, it's the interior of a Lockheed C-141 StarLifter off on a Military Airlift Command "embassy run." The transports take off from Charleston, S.C., flying eastward, and from Travis Air Force Base, Calif., flying westward, on weekly trips to U.S. embassies around the world.

PLEDGES STRUGGLE—Buddhist leader Thich Thien Minh, right, pledged struggle to the "last drop of blood" against alleged betrayal of political truce by military government.

POSTER AND PERSON—Actress Raquel Welch proved to be every bit as fetching in person, if somewhat more formally dressed, as in a piece of poster art as she posed beside an advertisement for her upcoming picture, "The Biggest Bundle of Them All." Occasion was a party in Rome marking beginning of the film.

A small gift makes a pleasant token of thanks.

LITTER EXPRESS—A tradition of the Old West is being applied to the national litter-prevention program in the Southwest where instead of the Pony Express it's now the Litter Express. In a campaign originating in New Mexico, horseback riders are being encouraged to carry saddlebags for stowing their own trash as well as litter picked up along trails. Fully equipped express riders here are Betty Lou Purvis, 18, Miss Teen-age New Mexico of 1964, and Jennifer Bates, 16, of Albuquerque.

IN CONTROL—Troops of South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky entering Da Nang's city hall backed up by the guns of tanks, were alerted for possible counteraction by anti-government units from Hue.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP)—LSD is a dangerous drug when young people use it for kicks. But handled cautiously and under carefully controlled situations, it may — and the word "may" is stressed — be a godsend in the treatment of some mental and emotional disorders.

"CBS Reports," in a responsible and completely absorbing program Tuesday night presented two cases in which its use proved dramatically successful.

With the consent and help of two former patients, a 33-year-old alcoholic husband and father and a woman in her late 40s who suffered delusions of persecution, and the staff of a mental hospital, the program obtained film made before, during and after LSD was administered.

Emphasis throughout the program was that the long careful "preparation" of patients before administering the drug was as important as LSD's amazing effect on the mind.

Patients spoke of the "fantastic imagery" in which "sounds were seen, colors heard, ideas felt," some of it frightening and horrible and some of it funny and spirit-lifting. The effect was to open up some closed chambers in a sick mind.

Both patients at the Spring Grove State Hospital in Maryland — only two of 500 who have received the drug — were first given 15 hours of intense psychotherapy, plus long interviews and all sorts of psychiatric tests. They both built intimate relationships with the psychotherapists who gently helped them through the grueling, tormented 14 hours under the influence of the drug.

Six months after the treatment, the alcoholic man reported he had lost all desire to drink, believed he understood his problem, had a job and was going to night school.

The woman had resumed a fine relationship with her husband and family — a relationship lost, her husband suggested, years before.

But while the treatment apparently has worked with some cases, "CBS Reports" carefully noted that it had no effect in others. Scientists, doctors and psychiatrists interviewed were eager to continue experimenting with it in some situations but while hopeful were cautious about predicting miracles. And, of course, everyone worried about the use of the powerful, highly dangerous stuff by inexperienced persons.

ABC's big news of the day was plans for a full evening program — 3½ half hours — on Africa which will take almost a year to pull together.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
LONDON (AP) — Football great Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns is in London to make a movie and football's loss may be film's gain.

Jim was striding along the Thames on a day off from MGM's "The Dirty Dozen," in which he plays a murderer — "but a nice murderer." He's part of a wartime squad of soldier criminals assigned to a risky mission that doubtless saves World War II for the allies.

Acting is nothing new for Brown, and I don't mean the villainous work he does against the Los Angeles Rams, etc. He made his debut as a thespian in a Hollywood western, "Rio Conchos."

"It was a good break-in for me because I had a lot of action and not too much dialogue," he recalled. "I ride a horse pretty good although my style is unconventional. But then, I'm that way in most of the things I do."

His work in "The Dirty Dozen" will be more demanding. Producer Kenneth Hyman is convinced Brown can keep up with the stellar cast that includes two Oscar winners, Lee Marvin and Ernest Borgnine.

"We'll see," said Brown realistically. "At any rate, this acting is something that I would definitely like to explore."

"It seems to me that there are not many Negro actors in Hollywood right now, and yet the roles for Negroes are becoming more frequent. The only star nowadays is Sidney Poitier, who has wide acceptance and won himself an academy award. He has made a couple of pictures that have been successful and present him in roles that afford him different opportunities."

"Sidney can't do them all. So maybe there's a chance for me."

What about his football career?

When that question comes up, Brown becomes an all-American in circumlocution. After a period of open-field running, he provided this answer: "I would like to play my final season in football, but circumstances may prevent me from doing so."

You can make whatever you want of that, with Jim's blessing. At any rate, Brown, 30, is looking for other fields, although last season was one of his best. Coming up is his 10th year in pro ball, and how long can a fellow go on in that bone-rattling profession?

BARBS

Conscience is that awful little voice that tells you your wedding anniversary was yesterday.

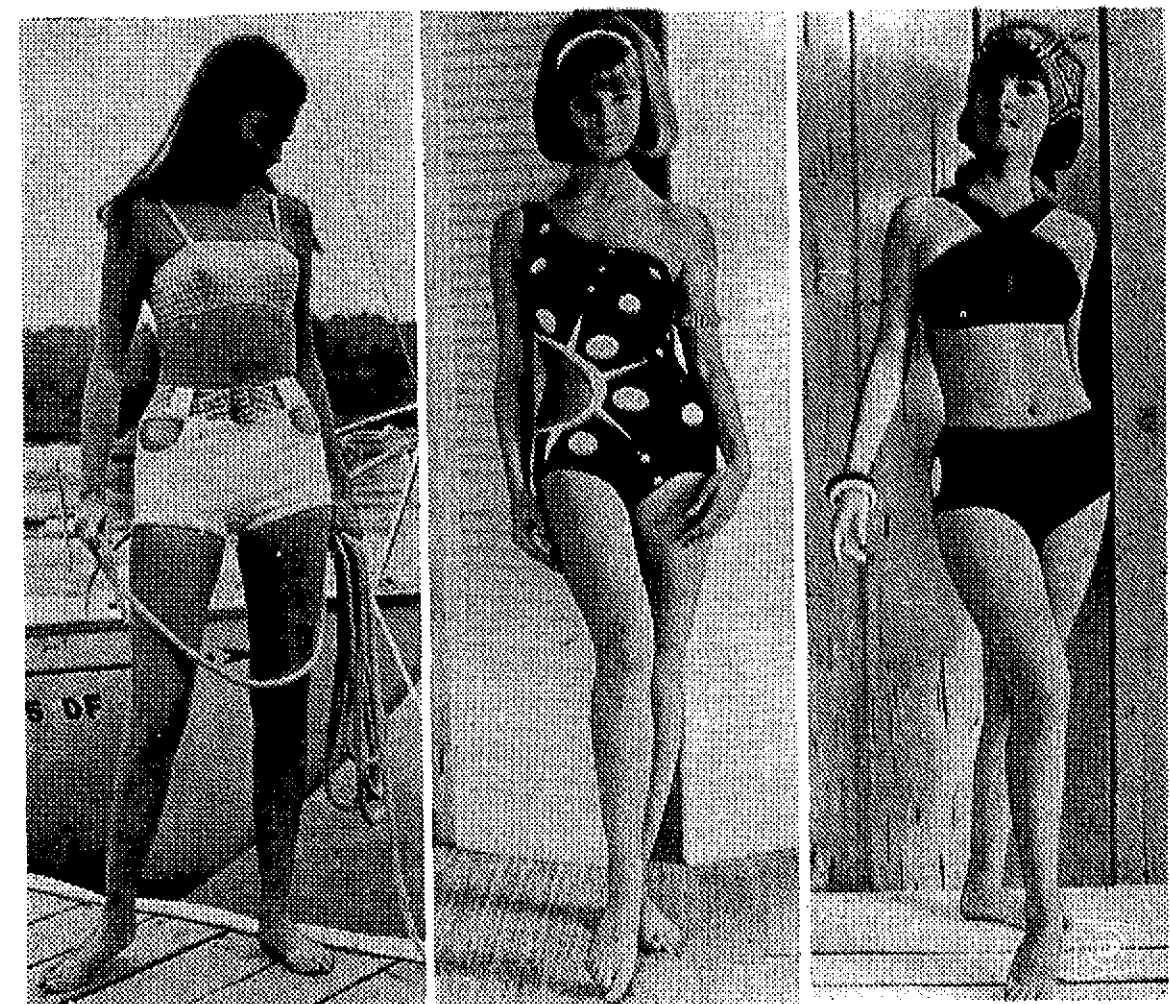

School vacations begin pretty soon and that's when mom's ends.

Beatle-types and bald men grin when they pass barber shops.

Chronic fault-finding with others is a good tip-off you don't think much of yourself.

Cut-Outs for Water Sports

Cut-outs turn up in unexpected places to give a new look to this season's swimsuits. Two-piece suit (left) by Wet Set combines crisp checks with white in nylon knit. Cut-out in boy-leg shorts is the "empty pocket" look. Control of the curve is shown in stretch double-knit nylon, one-shoulder suit (center). Surprise cut-out bursts into rays of white moons. Two-piece, hip-riding knit (right) has criss-cross keyhole bra and side-keyhole trunks. These are Sea B designs.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If you have wondered where we'll go in beachwear fashions after last year's fishnets and peek-a-boos, the answer is cut-out — strategically placed.

Unlike last year's designs, this season's swimsuits concentrate on a body awareness rather than unsubtle exposure.

The Boutique

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A fashion that has an individual touch yet doesn't deplete the budget too greatly is dear to the heart of any teen-aged girl. So the idea of stretching your accessory wardrobe with interchangeable handbag tops and matching kerchiefs should be a welcome one for summer.

This do-it-yourself project, using just one base and snap-on, snap-off fashion tops, makes it possible for you to change your purse as often as you change your mind. But you'll have to use a sewing machine. If you don't know how, perhaps you have a doting relative who will do the job for you.

Decorative snap fasteners are the key to this fashion trick. Gripper snap fasteners in various motifs stud the base. With a twist of the wrist, you snap tops on and off. Gripper plier kits (made by Oakville Division of Seovill Mfg. Co.) will quickly apply snap fasteners and eyelets for cord handles.

To make two changes of tops and scarves you will need only 10 decorative fasteners, 12 studs and 24 eyelets. These and the plier kits are on notion counters everywhere. The pliers also have a gadget which punches holes and locks in the eyelets at the same time.

For the base cut a cardboard circle 7 inches in diameter and from ¼-yard of plastic covered fabric cut a circle ¾ inches larger all around. Center the cardboard on the wrong side of the plastic, secure with cello tape and machine stitch it. Then cut a plastic square with sides the same as the diameter of the plastic circle. Place the wrong sides together, secure with tape and then machine stitch over the first stitches. Round off the corners and the plastic bottom is finished.

For the side, cut a plastic rectangle 24 inches by 5½ inches. Seam the short sides on the wrong side. After stitching the lower edge to the base cut off all but ¼-inch seam allowance and turn to the right side. Fold top edge inside one-inch and hold with pins in four even sections, on each side of the seam. Then, following the kit instructions, replace each pin with a snap fastener with the decorative side outside. There's your base with eight snap fasteners ready for different fashion tops.

For the polka dot petal top

Except for a small group of exhibitionist suits (which unfortunately always find a market among people with the wrong figures to wear them) the new beachwear will be in classic knit with an occasional cut-out or print design that curves as the body curves. The prints are put on individually after the suit is cut.

The blousey look of last year is out. But its influence crops up in several body softened looks such as the new tunic and skirted suits.

Co-ordinates — the jackets, shirts, pullovers and pants to mix and match — will be big on the beach scene. Some groups of co-ordinated sportswear are designed to match up with two or more swimsuits to give you a greater choice.

From bikini to slick one-piece, this season's swimwear is handsome. And there's a suit to flatter every figure. It's up to us to figure out which is our cup of tea.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

No Health Hazard in Use Of Basement Rooms

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Since some persons live in basement apartments and some who live in houses have bedrooms or recreation rooms in the basement, the question arises from time to time whether such rooms are a health hazard. In general it can be said that there is no hazard provided the air is not too damp and carbon monoxide does not leak from the furnace or water heater.

In winter the nearness of the furnace usually insures warmth and the absence of dampness. The heated air may even become too dry. In summer a dehumidifier may be advisable.

Some persons blame their varicose veins on standing on the cement floor of a basement. Prolonged standing on any kind of surface without frequently wiggling your toes will aggravate varicose veins but the cause of the condition is a failure of the valves within the veins and not the standing.

Basement air of any quality will not cause head colds. These are caused by a virus that is spread from person to person. Arthritis sometimes appears to be aggravated by dampness but in most persons dampness has nothing to do with it — it is a result of aging.

If you have a basement recreation room or bedroom, use it and apply the same measures to preserve your health you would in any other part of the house.

Q—After reading about all the awful side effects from different drugs I have been afraid to take the muscle relaxant, Tranquil. What are its side effects?

A—Strictly speaking, chloroform (Tranquil) is a minor tranquilizer rather than a muscle relaxant. Although Q—If a person stands on his head and drinks a glass of water, why doesn't the water run out by force of gravity?

A—Because in the esophagus the water is swept toward the stomach regardless of the position of your body. The circular muscles of the esophagus form a smooth series of constricting bands that propel the water or food in one direction only except during regurgitation or vomiting (peristalsis in reverse).

almost all drugs have undesirable side effects, these are usually the result of an individual hypersensitivity or injudicious use. When you are taking any modern drug you should report any unusual symptoms to your doctor. Most persons tolerate chloroform very well but drowsiness, dizziness, dryness of the mouth, nausea and skin eruptions have been observed in some persons taking this drug.

Is It Love Or Is He Just A Habit?

Dear Helen: I've been going with this boy we'll call Tom for two years; he's really the only boy I ever dated. We have talked about marriage in about two years and I'm sure we love each other. He has spoiled me — always waiting at the corner when I go to my girl friends to be sure I don't see any other boys. In fact, he has taken all my time, and I don't really mind except I think we ought to know other people so we'll be sure of our love.

When I suggest dating others, he says God will punish me if I break off with him, and he will never take me back if I look at another boy. He even gets mad and throws things at me. He doesn't trust me at all, and I thought love was built on trust.

But this is the last straw! I just ache to go to the junior-senior prom, and he says he wouldn't be caught dead at it, and if I went he would never speak to me again.

I don't want to lose Tom — he is wonderful and I love him — but don't want to feel — Married When I'm Not.

Dear MWIN: What you've described is habit on your part, possessive selfishness on Tom's. It most definitely is NOT the kind of love that builds a good marriage.

Go to the prom, date others, and give Tom a chance to grow up. I'm sure your parents will be as relieved as you about the break-off. — H.

Dear Helen: I recently bought a pair of three-button gloves for a formal dance.

I know I should take them off to eat dinner, but should I put them back on for the program and dance? When I do put them on, who will help me button them? If I asked my date, would he be embarrassed? — Margaret

Dear Maggie: Formal gloves are only removed for dining. They should be worn while dancing. With a little home practice you can learn to button them yourself. Boys are usually all thumbs at this sort of thing. If you are, too, then take your girl friend with you to the powder room and help each other with them, or get the attendant to help — if there is one. — H.

Stop At First Base
Dear Helen: Help, emergency! You have to tell me fast, how far is first, second and third base with boy? I have to know where I stand. — D. T.

Dear D: Frankly, I don't know what you're talking about but I'd make a wild guess that when a girl gets to first base with a boy (wangles a date) she'd better not let him steal second and third or else she'll have to make a fast "Home" run. (before he "goes the distance," as they say on the sport pages.) — H.

Dear Helen: Why don't stores put more flattering lights in the fitting and dressing rooms? You can go in to buy a dress and think you aren't bad looking — Before you hit those awful glaring lights that show up every bad point. They even make your figure look awful, how I don't know. I get so depressed every time I try on clothes I want to hide in a cave. I bet stores would sell more clothes if they had softer lights where people try things on. — Contrary Mary

Dear Mary: I'll buy that! You owners — take note. — H.

A Beautiful Picture Seeks More of the Same

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Even though she's still as beautiful a picture as nature allows, Lana Turner is thinking ahead.

"I don't want to be a character actress with a cane," she says. "I think I'll only make a few more pictures, as an actress. And then I think I'd like to go into production."

From her first picture — "They Won't Forget" — to her most recent — "Madame X" — has been a long career. It has brought her wealth. It has also brought her some unhappiness. She has learned to live with both.

"It took a long time," she says, "but eventually I built a facade and I live behind that. It isn't easy to build and it isn't impregnable. Even today I will hear about something that has been written about me in one of those magazines that I don't allow in my house."

"And it will hurt." She took a cigarette from a jeweled case and lit it with a jeweled lighter.

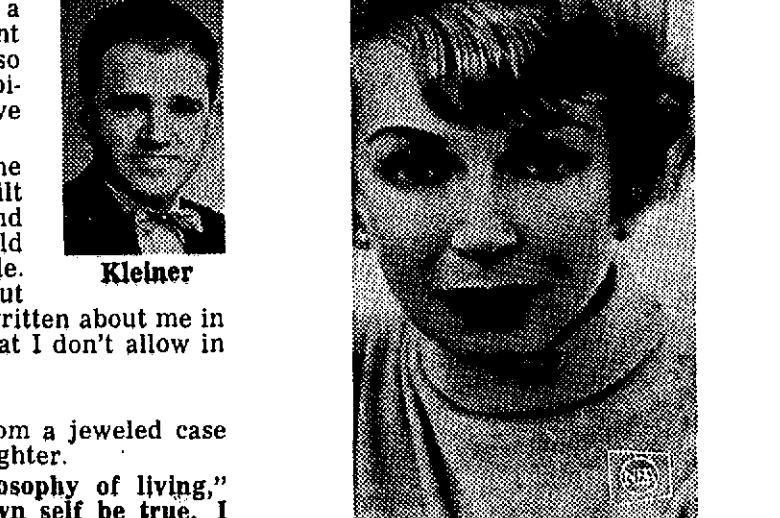

"I've developed a philosophy of living," she went on. "To thine own self be true. I know those things which are written about me aren't true, and that's all that matters. And, then, I also live by this — 'This, too, shall pass away.'"

"But how could I have any regrets?" she asks. "Movies have given me so much. The things I've been able to do, the places I've been able to travel to, the financial security I have for myself and my children, the way I can live — when I have all that, how could I have any regrets?"

Newest addition to Lana Turner's life is horse racing. She and her husband, Robert Eaton, have the beginnings of a thoroughly bred stable. A two-year-old colt named Mr. Blackeye will start at Hollywood Park soon, and a two-year-old filly named Capita is being reared for the Del Mar meeting.

"But our pride," she says, "is a yearling, a three-quarters brother of Kelso. We're very excited about him."

Lana has designed the silks her jockey will wear. She wanted something she could see across the track, so her colors will be orange, black and white.

LANA TURNER

ning struck — she dreamed of being a dress designer. Designing the silks for her racing stable is now the next best thing.

She also is occupied these days looking for scripts for herself. They aren't easy to find. "I have been reading novels and plays and screenplays," she says, "until my eyes are ready to drop out. But they're just not writing beautiful stories any more."

"Almost everything has to do with homosexuals or dope or alcoholism. I just wonder how much further they can go."

"I look back at the old days and I remember the beautiful pictures that Irene Dunne made — remember 'Theodora Goes Wild?' — and the beautiful pictures that Katherine Hepburn made. Why can't we have pictures like that today?"

"Maybe I'll have to find where those old stories are and dust them off and do them again. I don't care if they call me The Queen of the Remakes. They are beautiful stories."

God's Word

Says Come

What a Morning

Surely this is the day of the Lord. His sun is shining, His birds are singing... all's right with the world. But how is it with you? Are you enjoying God's surpluses? Can you speak as David spoke in Psalms 23:5? ... my cup runneth over. Do you attend Sunday school and the regular worship hour in the church of your choice? Could it be that you are in the midst of plenty and letting your soul starve to death? If so you have recourse in God. The way of the Lord is straight and poverty does not exist with Him. Why not wake up with this mother and son, look out the window and accept the challenge He offers you. Go to Sunday school and worship services this very day.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Opponents Give Winning Clue

By JACOBY & SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Bridge is not played in a vacuum. You have a partner and you have opponents and if you want to succeed as a player you should believe your partner first and also pay attention to what your opponents have done.

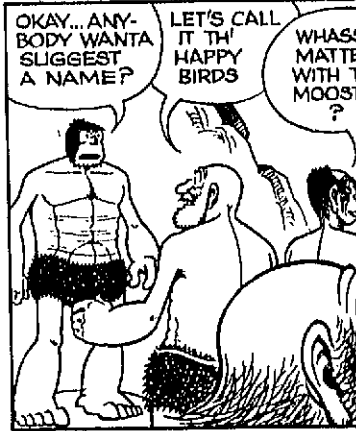

When South looked over dummy's first thought was that North had bid a trifle too much when he jumped to four spades but the contract was a reasonable one. South knew he would have to lose two heart tricks but if he could get away with the loss of only one spade, everything would be fine.

Playing in a vacuum, South would simply have taken a spade finesse and gone down when the finesse lost but South wasn't playing in a vacuum.

He followed to two hearts and ruffed the third. He noted that East followed to the third heart, therefore West could not have started with more than five hearts.

South counted 27 high card points between his hand and dummy. That left 13 points for East and West. Eight of them were represented by the ace-king-jack of hearts and the other five by the king and jack of spades and the jack of diamonds.

West had opened the bidding with one heart. He surely needed the king of spades for his opening bid, in which case the spade finesse would not work.

This left another play for the contract and South tried it. Instead of finessing the spade, South simply led out the ace and a small one. West had to win with the king and South was able to pick up the rest of the tricks.

Coping With the Mod Look

THE WEST GOES EAST: The difference between the Old West and the new mod is not really great. At left, the wranglers sport gambler stripe jeans and hopsack cotton slacks by Contact Slacks. The wide belt loops and slim jean look are decidedly western. The scooter boys, on the other hand, show mod. Shaggy youth on the scooter wears brush denim cap by Adam Hats and glen plaid trousers by Contact. Other swinger shows blue cotton hopsack pants and white linen cap.

By BOB COCHNAR

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Is the mod mood mod or mad?

Mad, perhaps, but it certainly hasn't stopped American menswear manufacturers from flooding their lines with snazzy duds bearing direct influences of London's Carnaby Street.

John Stephen, the 29-year-old Scot who, despite the jealous sniffing of mod-comelates both here and abroad, created and marketed the mod look, is slightly amused that U. S. clothing men consider him a threat.

The king of Carnaby Street the owns most of the block-long alley in Soho has been visiting the states for several weeks, supervising the establishment of Stephen boutiques in nine units of the Allied Stores Corp.

After the successful opening of this imported clothing sold out in three days of a shop in New York's Stern Brothers, Stephen relaxed in a restaurant and contemplated his future.

"As long as we continue to provide what young people want," he says, "how can we go wrong?" Stephen discounts the dark rumors floating in from England that "mod is dead."

"Och, awa' wi' ye," he remarked, using a phrase of his Glasgow youth. "The look is not dead in London. It's more popular than ever. And now that we are about to recolonize the colonies, we're really on our way."

King John, despite some evidence to the contrary, also denies the influence of the American West. "No, our clothes are original," he says. "They're colorful, interesting and I think, attractive. They were designed especially for young people and not adapted from another style."

That's why, he believes, youngsters, regardless of nationality, consider Stephen designs "their own." "We're not selling cut-down versions of old people's clothes and the teenagers know it."

One U. S. clothes man, Martin Miller of Contact Slacks, apparently scored a beat on his competition by personally visiting Carnaby Street last year and bringing home a trunkload of Stephen clothing.

He told his staff: "Get started on designs like those right away."

Miller frankly admits that Stephen and mod were the "best things to happen to the American menswear industry. It shook us up a bit."

"The look reflects an entirely new philosophy in taste. The men of America are showing how tired they were of staid, conservative fashions and how anxious they were to try something new. This sort of thinking is a definite part of the Sixties."

And John Stephen while deciding which one of his two Rolls-Royces to pull out of his London garage, could only agree.

Who Swiped This Sergeant's Privacy?

By JOAN CROSBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Frank Sutton has been robbed and there's nowhere to turn.

Sutton, who is the bombastic Sgt. Carter on CBS-TV's Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C., was, prior to the series, one of the busiest and best young character actors around. He played heavy dramatic roles that "always ended, tears streaming down my face, with my being dragged through the green door to the room with the electric chair."

He was recognizable to the public, but still he had privacy. "I had the great freedom of being with my family, and going to drive-in movies and dressing in dungarees, tennis shoes and a $1.50 work shirt," he said, with a sigh.

With success, that has changed. "I've been robbed of a lot. Now I can't dress like a bum. I can wear casual clothes, but the sweater had better be a $50 one and the shoes English-made. It can be casual, but it must be casual-expensive. And now if I get an itch on my posterior I have to go five blocks out of the way, walking funny, before I can be alone to scratch."

Success has also brought Sutton opportunities to make personal appearances and do things like being a judge at the Miss USA Beauty Pageant, set for CBS-TV on May 21. "In the old days as a free lance actor, I loved aiming for a target date. The script would be sent to you two weeks before production and you could work on it and meet the director. And all the while there was the great freedom of being with your family. Now I have lost the whole feeling of a target date because there and the other a cocktail party which would not. We filmed a lot of nice scenes. But when the show was edited, we were 20 minutes over and guess what I had to cut?

"My wife has been angry ever since. She hated to tell our friends they wouldn't be on. She told some, but not all. One man and wife had gone to Florida for a vacation, and they had the whole hotel watching the show with them."

Fashion Tips

Mobles for Ears

Free form mobles used to hang in nurseries but today they are dangling from cars of "little darlings." Hand-enameled in a wash of white, a buttering of yellow or whichever color complements your costume best.

Angel in Draped Halo
Who's the angel in the draped halo? It could be you. Matte jersey, open back, turban look front, covers part of the head for the important new look. Cut out and baring very of the moment... with great impact.

Manicuring Helps Hands

Finger nails bitten to the nub? Let them grow to a complimentary length and improve the looks of your hands. While they are growing, use a nail brush to keep the nails and cuticles clean. Smooth chewed nails gently with an emery board to remove the jagged look and to help them grow more evenly.

Keep Eyebrows Clean

Keep the eyebrows clean. Pluck stray hair from between the eyes. The inner corners of the brows should be plucked to be directly over the corners of your eyes. To emphasize the highest arc over the temple bone of the eye, pluck a few hairs from the underside of the brow at this spot.

England is swinging with its own style short-short skirts in wide stripes, plaids or nude spots. In make-up, too, there is an English look. This is a round innocent look based on "English eye." It starts with an eyelighter, a light-refracting cream smoothed on under the eye. Shadow is brushed on the lid (left) from the lash-line to the fold of the eye. Bring color to the inside of the eye and shade up to 1/4-inch away from the brow. Again

Brush-on Knee Beauty

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

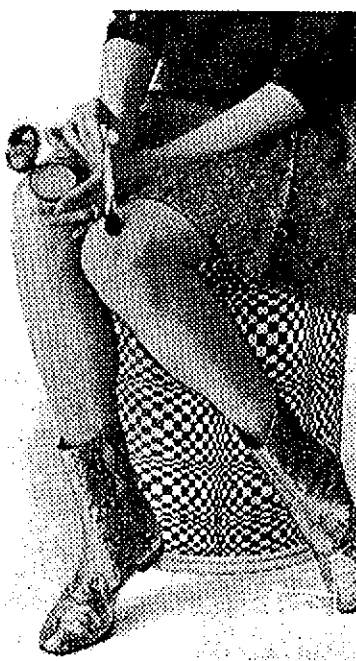

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Members of the Society of Leg Watchers, Inc., have polished their eyeglasses and now go around with a Cheshire-cat smile. The reason for their happiness? The nutty, knacky, kicky, miniskirts sweeping, so to speak, the fashion world.

The skirts which often ride three to five inches above the knee are cute on perky little girls—say in their teens. However, women being women, some pushing 45 (and over) are joining the parade and flaunting their fashion freedom. Fashion freedom? Any mature woman who insists on dressing half her age is as ridiculous as a lemming following its suicidal leader.

For those who turn to short skirts, brush up on your leg and knee beauty tricks.

Your legs require special attention during their exposure. Be certain to keep them smooth and clean.

Knees, especially, present a special problem since the Leg Watchers report most women

Kicky short skirts call for more shapely knees. A skintone blush applied over the entire kneecap gives a "lighting" effect. To improve knee contour apply a deep brown shadow in cream form on the inner knee. For thin knees, shade the center knee.

(John Robert Powers)

here. Unattractive knees can be camouflaged.

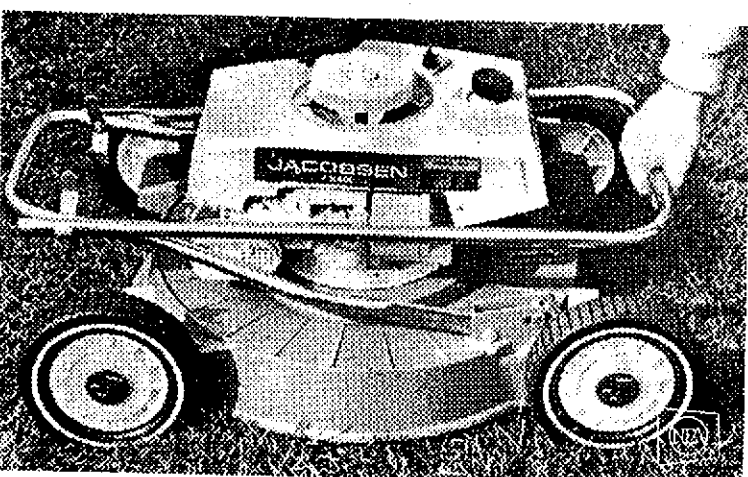

First apply a foundation front and back. One with a matte finish that dries quickly is good. This covers rough spots or blemishes. If the knee area is more "porky" than "stinky," experts at John Robert Powers suggest using a brown shadow or blush.

Use the brown on the inner knee to mold and help create an illusion of contours. Fill out a knobby knee by applying the shadow in the center and a lighter foundation on each side.

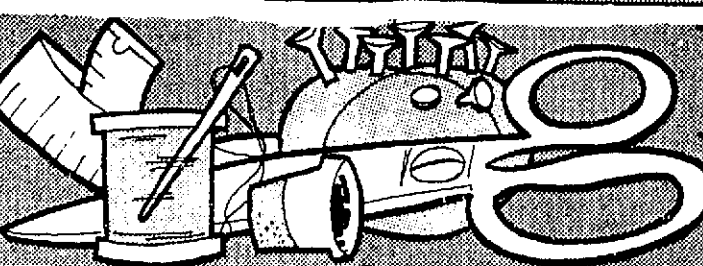

Another kneecap fashion keeping pace with the shorter hemline is the use of a pressed powder blush brushed on the knee. If your complexion is pale, select one in the pink family. Peach is good for the fair to mid skin tone and bronze for the more tanned.

Another kick for evening is to dab one of the pearlized or golden cosmetics in the hollow of the knee. The fashion-conscious may be short on fabric this season but they are long on the shimmer, luminescent cosmetic look.

Mary Brooks Picken on Sewing

by Mary Brooks Picken

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Observe the following 10 "Sewing Commandments" and you should always meet with complete success.

• Keep your machine oiled, wiped clean and use the stitch regulator to insure that the stitch is right in length for the weight of your fabric.

Test on a scrap of material stitching two thicknesses together.

• Buy the best quality fabric you can afford. Be certain that color and texture are becoming and appropriate for your purpose.

• Make sure silhouette of the pattern is right for your fabric. Avoid fullness with heavy fabrics. Sheer fabrics need linings or a slip made especially for the garment.

• Read your pattern instructions. Identify each pattern piece, know on what grain it should be placed for right cutting. Check the length of the pattern to see if you need to lengthen or shorten.

• If you are in doubt about size, allow 1/2 to 3/4 inches on the side seams when cutting so that the garment will surely be large enough. This can be done without distorting your pattern.

• Place all pattern pieces before you start to cut, pinning each carefully. With tracing paper, chalk or tailor tack mark each dart. Be sure you make a notch outward in the seam line for position of fullness, sleeves, etc.

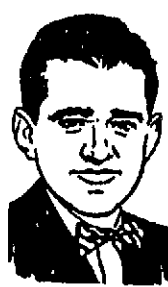

• Have an iron and ironing board ready so you can press each seam before it joins another. Curved seams are best pressed over a tailor's ham; lacking this use a bowl or jar. For sleeve seams, roll up a magazine, cover with a presscloth, slip sleeve over this, hold seam open, dampen and press.

• When your dress is seamed, hang on a hanger to avoid unnecessary wrinkles. Plan to do your hand finishing when watching television, you will be surprised how much you can accomplish.

• When you fit your dress, put make-up on, be sure hair looks nice, heels of a height you will wear—all will help to make the dress look as good as possible in the fitting. Then you will be inspired to finish it promptly.

• If a dress, suit, coat or any other garment has been properly pressed as you make it, pressing each seam before it joins another, you should not need a final pressing. However, some feel with suits and coats that they like to send them to the tailor for a complete steam pressing when the garment is finished.

Two Years Yet For the Fuge

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

HOLLYWOOD—BY EASY STAGES—
One block from Paramount Studios, the "Warning Shot" company was shooting. Since they were outside the studio grounds, even if it was only a block, it was technically on location.

They had rented the house belonging to one of the Paramount drivers, a man named Al Latta. In the picture, this was David Janssen's house.

The scene Buzz Kulik was directing had Janssen drinking a glass of milk containing a Mickey Finn, passing out in a chair and then a gloved hand comes in and turns on the gas jet. Obviously, somebody didn't like him.

The gloved hand belonged to Len Felber, an actor who took a lot of ribbing—"I've heard of a stand-in, but you're just a hand-in"—good-naturedly.

While waiting for the set to be lighted, Janssen relaxed in his sumptuous trailer.

As soon as "Warning Shot" is finished, Janssen goes back to the fourth year of his television series, The Fugitive. Janssen thinks the series will go another year after this, that's all.

"I played golf with Quinn Martin (the producer) the other day," Janssen said, "and we both agreed—and we're the two controlling interests—that there's no point in going more than five years."

He says they haven't reached any decision on how to end the series—"There are lots of rumors about it, but that's all they are." Then they shot the scene. It worked well. But when David dropped the half-empty glass of milk, the liquid dripped into his shoe. He had to finish the scene with a milky foot.

IN THE STUDIO, Bill Castle was directing a scene for his new comedy-mystery, "The Spirit Is Willing." What made the scene interesting to watch was that it was a love scene and the two participants had never done one before—in public.

Jill Townsend, in her first movie, and Bob Donner, an experienced character actor, use the eyelighter right under the eyebrow or on the bone to highlight. A cake-liner is used to paint a curve into and just above the upper lashes. With a moistened brush, apply this with a slight thickening at the center. Extend line under lower lashes to middle of the eye. A powdered eyebrow color is brushed on the brows. Finish the English eye by applying two coats of mascara (right) to the center of both the upper and lower lashes.

were playing ghosts, who materialized on top of a piano Cass Daley was playing. Before her horrified eyes they kissed long and lovingly.

Jill is a pale, frail blonde from Long Island (her father is a wheel in a car-rental firm that keeps trying harder). She giggled as Donner planted a firm kiss on her lips.

But I was watching Bob's wife, Cissy, a lovely blonde in a backless sports dress. She had climbed a ladder to get a better view of her husband's first screen love scene.

"I thought," Cissy said later, "that I was going to be blasé about this, but I find I'm very jealous."

Another scene had Donner and Miss Townsend cringing behind a sofa as Cass was supposed to pelt them with light bulbs. Earlier, Cass had thrown a flower pot and it had accidentally conked a grip.

"Are you going to trust me to throw the light bulbs?" Cass asked Castle. The director said no, somebody offstage would throw them. Jill was a little worried that she might be cut by the bulbs.

"Show her what they're made of so she won't be afraid," Castle told one of the prop men. They were made of a synthetic plastic. "It's just candy," the propman told her. And then he turned to me and whispered, "We call it candy for psychological reasons."

Whatever it was, it shattered nicely and no one was hurt.

"Papa Hemingway." A. E. Hotchner's best-selling personal memoir of his good friend, may be heading for the movie screen.

And this automatically poses a problem. Who is there among today's actors who could play Ernest Hemingway?

"The first night I was here on this trip," Hotch says, "I went to a party and everybody began making suggestions. Jack Lemmon was playing the game and I began imagining how he would look in a white beard."

Hotch has one candidate himself, based not so much on physical resemblance as on a similarity of spirit. He is Albert Finney, and, of course, it would depend on whether or not he could lose his English accent.

A. E. Hotchner has for many years made a specialty of adapting Hemingway stories for the television screen. And now he has written this excellent book. It was, he says, something he had to do.

"When someone like Hemingway dies," he says, "it is very hard to face up to it. For me, this book was the only way I could bury Ernest Hemingway. Now I think he is dead for me, at last."

Would Make All Men Serve Two Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is thinking of a voluntary effort — not compulsion — in his proposal that every young American devote two years to service either in uniform, the Peace Corps or some other help-mankind program.

Associates of the defense chief said today after McNamara returned from Montreal, where he offered his proposal in a wide-ranging speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Sources familiar with McNamara's thinking said the secretary envisions both young men and young women taking part. Officials cautioned against jumping to any conclusions that the Pentagon would send implementing legislation to Congress. They did not rule out the possibility, however.

McNamara's associates also sought to draw attention to other facts of the speech. These included the secretary's call for "building bridges" toward Red China and his emphasis on international peacekeeping as a hoped-for pattern of the future. It was understood that McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk has reviewed together the foreign policy aspects of the speech before the Pentagon chief went to Montreal to deliver it.

His service for all youth proposed came after he spoke of the need for a worldwide community of effort. The present young generation in the United States is "committed and dedicated" — it has so yet omnipotent and omniscient. — Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal

Vote Allows Shifting of Federal Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson appeared assured today of congressional authority for a venture into the private capital market designed to hold the 1967 budget deficit to his predicted $1.8 billion rather than a possible $6 billion.

While the Senate and House still must negotiate some details, the House removed the last big doubt Wednesday by voting 206-190 for Johnson's bill to permit the administration to shift federal loans to private investors, using the resulting cash to finance some government operations. The Senate has passed the bill in slightly different form.

The close House vote climaxed a long controversy that found liberal Democrats joining Republicans in opposition to the bill and many fiscally conservative Southerners supporting it. The Republican opposition was solid.

The Senate was expected to move quickly for a conference to reconcile the differences on the measure. The administration is known to be planning to use the authority as soon as possible to provide funds for some agencies now short of cash.

Corning Pilot Dies in Crash

CORNING, Ark. (AP) — C. C. Shourd, 57, a farmer from the Tipperary, Boystown area about 12 miles southwest of here, was killed Thursday when a single-engine plane crashed in a wooded area.

Sheriff Francis Underwood said the pilot was Shourd's son, Charles Shourd Jr., 35, who was hospitalized at Corning with injuries that were described as serious.

Underwood said the plane apparently nosed over into a wooded area near the landing strip at the Shourd farm.

No Chance of Halting Dollar Flow

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Viet Nam war has virtually ended any chance of halting the drain of American dollars overseas this year.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler indicated this much Wednesday. Although ending the deficit in the U.S. balance of payments in 1966 is still the goal he said, the administration may have to settle for something less.

"It may well be that we will have to settle for an interim objective of equilibrium exclusive of the costs of Viet Nam," Fowler added.

He made the comments in reporting a disappointing $502-million deficit in the payments position for the first three months of this year.

But he cautioned against projecting this into an annual rate. Quarterly figures although adjusted for seasonal variations are "notoriously unreliable guides to future performance," he said.

Fowler said he could give the dollar and cent estimate of the effects of the war on the net dollar outflow but added that since the buildup began last August "we have been little more than holding our own."

Not only has the war meant a net outflow for direct military aid, the secretary said, it also has adversely affected the historically favorable U.S. trade balance.

Although exports exceeded imports by a $4.4-billion annual rate during the first quarter, he said officials had hoped for an over-all $6-billion surplus this year. The trade surplus last year sunk to $4.8 billion from $7.7 billion in 1964.

Fowler said it's impossible to spell out how much more favorable the trade balance would be without the pressures on industrial capacity and demand created partly by the Viet Nam war. But he made clear the adverse effect may well have been greater than the direct costs of the war.

China Raps U.S. Sales to India
TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charged today that the recent agreement for the United States to sell India enriched uranium was a U.S. move "to step up its collusion with Indian expansionists to oppose China."

Faubus' Son May Be Put on Payroll

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — J. Orville Cheney, state Commerce Commission chairman, said Thursday that Claude Carpenter Jr., the commission's $10,000-a-year general counsel, has been relieved of his position.

Cheney said Carpenter was taken off the payroll because he is a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, and Cheney said he didn't believe it proper for Carpenter to be on the payroll while running for public office.

Cheney said the general counsel position was open, and said he had talked about the job with the governor's son, Farrell Faubus, a former assistant attorney general.

Young Faubus recently helped start a firm which offers campaign services for Democratic candidates for public office.

Medicare Data Goes to Sr. Citizens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government printing presses are churning out some must reading for 19.1 million senior citizens.

Beginning June 1, and continuing through the month, the Social Security Administration will mail out a green-covered, A.B.C.-style pamphlet entitled: "Health Insurance Under Social Security — Your Medicare Handbook."

It spells out what benefits are provided under Medicare and how to claim them. The program begins operating July 1 — except the services in "extended care facilities" such as nursing homes, which are not covered until Jan. 1, 1967.

The first part of the booklet explains hospital insurance, which helps pay four kinds of bills: hospital, nursing home, home benefits such as part-time nursing care and physical therapy, and outpatient diagnostic costs, like X-rays and electrocardiograms.

The second part deals with medical insurance, the voluntary plan under which a person past 65 can pay $3 a month with a federal matching payment. Briefly, this plan pays 80 percent of "reasonable" doctor's charges for covered services each year, after a patient meets a $50 deductible.

The hospital insurance, unlike the medical plan is financed out of Social Security taxes and is available to persons past 65 as a matter of right.

Some 17.3 million persons covered by both plans will be receiving a booklet explaining both. A booklet telling about hospitalization will go to some 1.8 million who are not signed up for the doctor's bills insurance.

Days of $15 Suits Are Not Gone

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, the days of $15 men's suits are not gone.

Henry Hillson & Co. of Albuquerque was the apparent low bidder recently to supply the New Mexico State Penitentiary with 215 men's suits at $14.39 each.

The suits are given to men released from prison.

Oregon Vote May Felt War Feeling

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon primary election next Tuesday should give a strong indication of how Americans feel about the war in Viet Nam.

Rep. Robert B. Duncan, D-Ore., and Howard Morgan agree the war in Viet Nam completely has dominated their campaign for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

They are running for the seat now held by Democratic Sen. Maurice Neuberger, who has decided to retire.

Duncan, 45, fully supports the policies of President Johnson in Viet Nam. He has been elected to the U.S. House twice and is a member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee. He is a lawyer and the father of seven.

Morgan, 52, says our involvement in a land war in Southeast Asia is a tragic mistake. He is a former state Democratic chairman and was a member of the Federal Power Commission for two years. He is co-owner of a Portland construction company and owns a cattle ranch. He is the father of four.

Both are handsome, articulate and effective campaigners. Morgan, perhaps, is more outspoken.

A third candidate, Gilbert Meyer, has drawn little support.

One of Morgan's supporters is Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore. Morse says if Morgan doesn't win he will vote for Gov. Mark O. Hatfield, who is running for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate and who also opposes Johnson's policies in Viet Nam.

Duncan says of the campaign: "I haven't been to one meeting where the first question wasn't about Viet Nam."

"Peace is our common desire," he says. "Only the methods for obtaining peace are at variance."

Ironically, Morgan was among those who urged Duncan to run for the Senate. But, says Morgan, Duncan's announcement he would run "revealed not only a military cast of mind but a completely uncritical acceptance of those military authorities in Washington who consistently have been wrong in their estimate of the national interest and its requirements."

Although Morgan says he supports the "Great Society," he also says of the Johnson administration:

"Today we are led by men who within 90 days after the election of 1964 had repudiated the unmistakable mandate of the American people and adopted the policies of (Barry) Goldwater which the voters had massively rejected."

"We need," Morgan adds, "more voices of sanity and fewer presidential parrots and rubber stamps in the Senate."

"There is no road to peaceful settlement which we have not explored," says Duncan. "It cannot help our cause to negotiate with each other while Hanoi refuses to negotiate. I would prefer not to fight but if must, I will fight and fight to win our objectives and I would rather fight communism on the Mekong than on the Columbia."

Morgan says the reason we have refused to deal with the Viet Cong, "and it has never been announced by our government, is that we do not propose to allow the Viet Cong to participate in any government in Viet Nam which they eventually might control, because that government might then ask us to leave."

"And we are not willing to leave because we then would have to abandon more than a billion dollars in huge, permanent military bases we now are building secretly, not only in Viet Nam but clear across to Burma. And without those bases we couldn't have the showdown with China which is the reason we went into Viet Nam in the first place."

Living Costs In America Are Going Up

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are stretching the already strained family budget even tighter with a sharp new rise in living costs. At the same time millions of breadwinners are bringing home smaller paychecks.

Latest government reports show living costs climbed faster for this time of year than in any similar period since the Korean War, while manufacturing cutbacks sliced the average pay of some 14 million factory workers.

The Labor Department said prices for food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care, recreation, and other living costs went up four-tenths of 1 per cent in April, the third straight substantial rise in the monthly consumer price index.

There was no direct word from the White House on whether the developments might trigger some action, hinted at earlier by President Johnson, to raise taxes or drastically revise his wage-price guidelines aimed at halting inflation.

But in a speech telephoned Friday night to a United Auto Workers convention in Long Beach, Calif., Johnson said the nation's economy does not depend on the stock market, which has been erratic of late, or on war spending.

He said it is time to "start thinking more soberly and realistically about the fact that ours isn't a roller coaster economy any more."

This was one of a number of generalized suggestions the President made after asserting the nation "must go on a new agenda."

Purpose of Girls State Is to Educate Them in U. S. Citizenship Responsibilities

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer
A recent announcement made about Girls State delegates this year may have caused some to ask, "What Is Girls State Anyway?"

Well, it is a program of education sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Arkansas, for training girls in our state in the fundamental aspects of citizenship. It is a "Laboratory of Practical Government" and a personal application of the duties, responsibilities, and privileges of American citizenship.

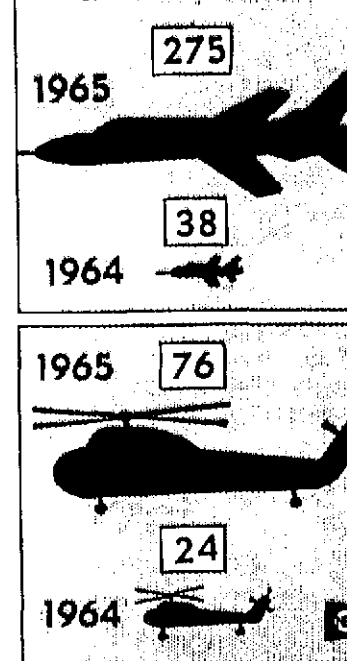

The purpose of Girls State is to educate young girls of high school age in the duties, privileges, and responsibilities of American citizenship. Too often in the present day Rights are stressed while overlooking the Responsibilities which they carry. At Girls State all phases of citizenship are studied, and the girls learn to participate in the actual functioning of our government.

Those attending the summer encampment located at Camp Robinson near Little Rock, must have completed their third or junior year in senior high school and are expected to return to their schools and communities to provide leadership. High standards of leadership, character, physical fitness, scholarship, cooperativeness, courage and honesty must be met by the delegates. On the other hand one may not participate more than one year as a camper, married or divorced girls are not accepted, and any girl whose religion does not permit her to pledge allegiance to the flag of our country is not eligible to attend.

Selection is made by the principal of the high school and a selected committee of teachers. The Unit Chairman of Girls State, the President of the American Legion Auxiliary, and the High School Principal receive letters regarding selection requirements, rules, and quotas. Of necessity, only a limited number may attend.

At 10 a.m. Sunday, June 12 a registration will begin for this year's session of Girls State. Local delegates will be sponsored by different patriotic, civic, and fraternal organizations. The Girls State delegates from Hope and their sponsors are: Peggy Franks (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franks), Leslie Huddleston Post, Unit 12, American Legion Auxiliary; Beth Lawrence (daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. L. T. Lawrence), Presbyterian Ladies Sunday School Class; Molly (Mary Stuart) Tolleson (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tolleson), Hope B & P W Club; Marjorie Royston (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Royston, Jr.), Hope Junior Auxiliary; Marla Jones (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones), Hope Rotary Club; Shirley Hinton (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Hinton), Hope Kiwanis Club; Debbie Connelly (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ames Connelly), Citizens National Bank; Robyn Formby (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Formby), Century Bible Class of the First Methodist Church; Cindy Reese (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Reese), First National Bank.

PLANE LOSSES IN VIET NAM

Reports of pilot shortages are borne out by a comparison of these unofficial 1964-65 figures for aircraft losses in Viet Nam. Upper panel refers to fixed wing planes and lower panel compares helicopter figures. Limited number of targets, thus easily fortified, and the intensified air war are the reasons given for the increase.

Conway County Training Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Health, Education and Welfare Department has authorized an extension of the work experience and training program in Conway County for one year, beginning June 1, it was announced Thursday.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said the $367,252 provided by the program includes $238,480 left over from the 1965 fiscal year and $128,772 added for the 1966 program.

Labor Strike To Paralyze British Ports

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of ships lay idle in British ports today as the spreading strike of merchant seamen neared the end of its first week.

Tugmen, sympathizing with the seamen, have refused to tow the vessels to nearby anchorages.

Within another week, many of Britain's docks will be jammed, its warehouses loaded with waiting exports.

Dockers, alert for any attempts at strike-breaking, say they would not hesitate to quit work rather than handle cargoes involving nonstrikers. This would imperil food and other vital British imports.

If the situation becomes acute enough to endanger the nation's welfare, Prime Minister Harold Wilson has promised to proclaim a state of emergency.

If that happens, the royal navy may be ordered to man the ships and open the ports.

Such a development would split the British people, plunge the country into turmoil and threaten the life of the Labor government.

It also would pose the possibility of an irreconcilable rift between Wilson's Labor party and the trade unions. The unions provide the party with most of its funds and votes.

Few authorities think things will get that far, however.

There have been no fights and no strike-breaking attempts — though William Hogarth, general secretary of the seamen's union, has hit out hard at what he calls Wilson's bias against the strikers.

Hogarth and the thousands of sailors who follow him resent Wilson's claim that the strike was "against the state, against the community." Wilson was assailed, too, for his proclaimed readiness to call in the Navy if necessary.

Episcopal Brotherhood To Be Formed

At the 8 a.m. service on Sunday a group of men will be formally admitted as members and will receive the charter of a local chapter of the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew.

The service will be under the supervision of Brigadier General (Rtd) Hugh Cort of Trinity Cathedral Parish, Little Rock, and James Bowman, Christ Church, Little Rock, assisted by other national and state officers.

General Cort is the Chairman of Laymen's Activities of the Episcopal Diocese of Arkansas, and former Senior Vice-President of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Mr. Bowman is President of the Arkansas Assembly of the Brotherhood.

The men of St. Mark's Church who will be admitted as members are Carl Howell, Russell Leonard, Leo Harmon, Jerry Winer, and the rev. Fred Hancock will proceed to install Mr. Howell as Director of the local chapter, Mr. Harmon as Secretary, and Mr. Winer as Treasurer.

Father Hancock explained that the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew is an international organization of men who are dedicated to the spread of Christ's Kingdom, and who live under a rule of service and prayer to accomplish this end.

Says a Scandalous Pair Always Needed

NANAIMO, B.C. (AP) — At least one scandalous couple is needed in an apartment building to keep the other tenants interested, says a management specialist.

William Cousins of the Seattle Institute of Real Estate Management told a group of real estate agents here that presence of such a pair keeps tenants busy wondering what they'll do next.

Study Pressed for Change in Draft Setup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional critics pressed today for an exhaustive re-examination of the nation's military draft system. They charged present procedures are inconsistent, inequitable, discriminatory and as outdated as the horse cavalry.

Two resolutions were introduced in the House asking appointment of special investigating committees. In the Senate, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., called upon the President to appoint a commission to review the "many inconsistencies and inequities" of the draft.

The developments came as Pentagon officials reported Thursday Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara opposes the idea of allowing service in the Peace Corps or similar programs to be accepted as a substitute for military service.

McNamara left this question unanswered when he said in a Montreal speech Wednesday that the inequities in the draft might be remedied "by asking every young person in the United States to give two years of service to his country" in uniform, the Peace Corps or other help-mankind programs.
